The Joan Trumpauer Mulholland foundation is dedicated to ending racism through education through films, books, curriculum and podcasts. Founded in 2014 we continue to expand our platform to educate students on how they, like Joan Trumpauer Mulholland, can make their world a better place. We provides individuals, teachers and classrooms with learning materials to help shed light on American history that is often either misunderstood or skipped over. Using reading materials and video, students are given a multi-faceted approach to learning, catering to the different ways they can best understand new concepts.
